OUR HISTORY

The W.C. Handy Blues & Barbecue Festival is a celebration of the life and legacy of William Christopher Handy. According to legend, the Alabama born composer and his band were traveling home from the postponed Chicago World's Fair in 1892 when they ran out of money in St. Louis. Work was scarce there, so Handy left the rest of the band and headed to Evansville, Indiana.

In need of funds, Handy worked on a street paving crew and joined a local band that performed throughout the region. While the group played at a Henderson barbecue, he met Elizabeth Price, who soon became his wife.

Handy spent nearly a decade in Henderson before moving on, eventually to be recognized as an accomplished composer of the blues and spiritual music. In his autobiography Father of the Blues, Handy said: "I didn't write any songs in Henderson, but it was there I realized that experiences I had had, things I had seen and heard could be set down in a kind of music characteristic of my race. There I learned to appreciate the music of my people ... then the blues were born, because from that day on, I started thinking about putting my own experience down in that particular kind of music."

His dedication to preserving the blues as an art form and his body of work in spiritual music inspired the Henderson Music Preservation Society, Inc. to organize a festival that would celebrate the life and musical accomplishments of W. C. Handy.

The Henderson Music Preservation Society, Inc. is a tax-exempt, non-profit charitable organization. Generous corporate and individual sponsors, as well as our many volunteers, help keep this festival free and open to everyone. We are proud to be in our 27th year of providing amazing music to the entire community, the tri-state, and visitors from across the country. The attendance builds throughout the weeklong festival, swelling towards the all day music extravaganzas on Friday and Saturday. Total attendance for 2017 was estimated at 40,000. The dates for the 2018 festival are Wednesday, June 13 through Saturday, June 16.

Our sponsors enable us to further our goals of honoring W.C. Handy with good barbecue and free blues; promoting tourism and contributing to a blossoming program of community arts events; and educating the youth of our community with a Blues in the Schools program.

The W.C. Handy Blues & Barbecue Festival has grown into a heritage event for the Henderson community and has made a national name for itself among blues festivals. The festival continues to garner many awards. In recent years, the Kentucky Main Street Program ranked our festival as the number one downtown festival in the state, even ahead of the Kentucky Derby Festival. In fact, we are proud to have been voted "Best in Kentucky" winner by the readers of Kentucky Living magazine in the Music Festival category for 2016 & 2017. The festival was named as a 2010 winner of the Top Ten Festivals in the Commonwealth by the Kentucky Tourism Council. The Southeast Tourism Society has named the festival a "Top 20 Event for June through 2017." Top 20 events are announced quarterly and featured in print media, web, television, and radio throughout the US and Canada.

Kentucky Educational Television, PBS's largest member, serving Kentucky and seven surrounding states, features past festivals in their nationally syndicated Jubilee series. By associating with the festival, our sponsors share in the limelight.

Please consider helping us to continue this tradition by becoming a sponsor.
